

Reef Renewal Foundation Bonaire Internship Application

Thank you for your interest in applying to the Reef Renewal Foundation Bonaire Internship. The RRFB internship is a rigorous program that invites participants to delve into the world of coral restoration and non-profit inner-workings. Internship positions last a maximum of 10 weeks (75 days) and are full-time positions (40hrs/wk). Interns can expect to gain a vast amount of experience both underwater and on land, promoting the project through public presentations or social media and preparing educational or marketing material. Diving days occur 4-5 times a week where interns assist RRFB staff with various activities including maintenance and monitoring of RRFB's offshore coral nurseries and outplanting corals to designated restoration sites along the island.

Interns are key to the functioning of our recreational dive programs where they will act as team leaders for volunteer divers—meaning they will be asked to lead a small group of divers through the steps of working in the coral nursery and outplanting on the reef.
